

My name is Cortney McLaughlin, and I am Otero's Art teacher! I will be entering my fourth year of teaching in January 2018. I studied Art Education and Ceramics with a minor in Art History at East Carolina University. I moved from North Carolina to Colorado in the pursuit of nature! In the past, you could find me hanging out on different beaches on the East Coast, and now I am exploring throughout the mountains. I am from a small rural town east of Raleigh. I have a big family that spreads out all over the world. Different cultures and people amaze me! My favorite artists are Vincent van Gogh and Michelangelo. My hobbies include anything outdoors, especially hiking with my dog, Sasha, and other Otero teacher friends. I also have a cat named Meesh, aka Dora the Explorer.

As your child's art teacher, my goal is to teach your child different art making processes and tools while incorporating other classroom curriculums, such as, math, science, ELA, and history. I would like to empower every student to be creative, unique, and independently equipped with a skill set.

Love what you do and you will achieve more

I am connected through ClassDojo and email cmclaughlin@hsd2.org
